the founder of central catholic

hugh c. Boyle
SIXTH BISHOP OF PITTSBURGH

Bishop Hugh C. Boyle, the founder of Central Catholic and beloved bishop of Pittsburgh for twenty-nine years, was a man of vision.

What he had in mind when he established Central Catholic might be difficult to pinpoint exactly—what he hoped would happen. In his homily at the Mass of Thanksgiving marking Central's 50th anniversary, Bishop Norbert Gaughan observed: "... this underestimated shepherd was making a break with the past. He was consolidating STUDENTS, long before we talked about consolidating SCHOOLS. He was making it possible for us to move outside parish boundaries before it was fashionable to talk about parochial provincialism... For him it was important that the students at Central Catholic get educated in what has been called

'a Christian humanist education.' When the Bishop spoke to the student body, he always urged the students to study harder, not just religion, but to study harder. It made him angry that students would fritter away their opportunities at Central. Himself a literate and definitely Christian humanist man, he wanted to see Catholic leaders in that mold. The learning would make the man; the man would change society.

"Yet by establishing Central Catholic, Bishop Boyle may have achieved more than even he bargained for. He set up the process by which the city of Pittsburgh and the region would gain Catholic professional men. Were you to read the roster of Central Catholic graduates, you would notice how many have moved into places of community leadership through the professional fields. . . .

These Catholic men have become an invisible support for the betterment of the city and the region, and the Church.

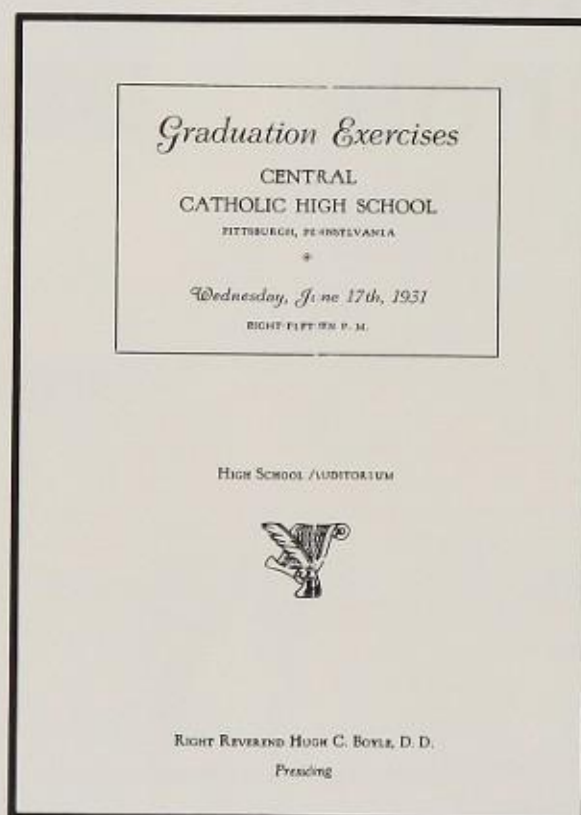

"Yet there was another happy result stemming from Central Catholic, which may not have been at all what Bishop Boyle intended, and not sought at all by us. It just happened. It is hinted at in the Gospel: 'I call you friends' . . . We established a Christian friendship that has lasted to this day . . . This school answered the needs of the Church of Pittsburgh in the way that Bishop Boyle wanted, and was needed. It surpassed his desires through the by-product of Christian friendship among Christian men which still lasts. It enlarged the boundaries of Christian vocation and gave society an able body of lay leaders. It has succeeded."

the time of BEGINNING

"Oakland was an alien neighborhood. But all of this changed as we met the 'foreigners' assembling at what we thought was to be called 'Boys' High.' However, on that opening day the principal, Brother Philip, made it quite clear that this was to be called 'Catholic High.' And so we named it 'Central.'" Such is the recollection of Brother Benedict McGough, FSC, a member of the first graduating class. And that's how Central began. Well, perhaps not quite. Years of preparation and commitment had joined to make the opening of Central Catholic possible.

The impetus for the establishing of Central Catholic High School was provided by the Most Reverend Hugh C. Boyle, Bishop of Pittsburgh from 1921 to 1950. The Bishop, sensitive to the desires of the people of the Diocese of Pittsburgh, planned to establish a series of district high schools to train Catholic leaders. In 1923, Bishop Boyle organized a campaign to secure the necessary funds to finance such a venture. He appealed to the Catholic people of Pittsburgh, and they responded generously. By April of 1926 construction was ready to begin.

The architectural firm of Link, Weber, and Bowers was retained for construction.

The building was blessed and dedicated on Sunday, September 11, 1927, by Bishop Boyle. Attending the dedication were more than one hundred priests of the diocese, and several thousand of the laity. Addresses at the ceremonies were given by Bishop Boyle, the Reverend John P. Gallagher, who was chairman of the campaign committee, and the Reverend Paul E. Campbell, Superintendent of Diocesan Schools from 1926 to 1939.

The dedication of the building, however, did not indicate that it was complete. The 487 freshmen who marched from the opening Mass at the Cathedral on Monday morning, September 12, to the auditorium for registration, found that the school needed a few finishing touches. First of all, there were no seats in the auditorium; and, of course, no front wall or quadrangle. Perhaps most striking of all, there was no Brothers' House. The fifteen Christian Brothers had sleeping quarters on the fourth floor of the school building. Rooms 108 and 110 served as the kitchen and dining hall; 305 and 306 as the chapel and sacristy. With the exception of the library, which wasn't to begin for three years, the academic necessities were complete. The classrooms, with their maple floors, were ready; and most of the science laboratories were equipped as well. Chemistry was eventually to be taught in 103 and 105; physics in 108 and 110; and biology in 104 and 106. In 1930, the library was begun with the appointment of Miss Mary Jane Beggy as librarian by Brother Denis Edward, the second principal. When he appointed Miss Beggy, there were only 800 books on the shelves. Miss Beggy, like the library, was to remain a fourth floor fixture for over thirty years.

The academic program was both traditional and difficult. There was heavy emphasis placed on courses such as religion, English, Latin, mathematics and science. The difficulty of the demands made on those early students is evidenced by the fact that, of the 487 students who reported that first day, only about 220 remained to graduate. What was it like for one of those early students? Brother Benedict McGough reminisces: "... So many things were being done for the first time. ... We were the first Central students to take books home, to wear ties, to bang locker doors, to make a mad rush for the cafeteria for a delicious lunch (that we brought from home). We had detention class, too. My Mother thought that I had an eighth period."

Pittsburgh was a cocky town then, made of steel and iron and glass and concrete. It was a city of rivers and hills and smoke. But, most of all, it was a city of people. And people meant neighborhoods. The Central students reflected those neighborhoods very well, and the mosaic that grew out of the interaction among those students and neighborhoods helped give Central its unique flavor and atmosphere. The names are still around. Shopworn or shipshape, they still ring a bell. To some they smack of ethnocentrism, but to Pittsburghers, they sound like home. The Strip, the Run, the Bluff, the Hill (where Duke Ellington, Count Basie and Earl Fatha Heinz gave jazz to Pittsburgh). Bellefield, Garfield, Bloomfield, Greenfield, Lawrenceville (where the smell of the bakery and the smell of the brewery fought each other for attention). Oakland, Soho, East Liberty, East End, Hazelwood, Point Breeze, Squirrel Hill, Homewood, Shadyside, Regent Square, Edgewood, Swissvale, Wilkinsburg; all with their own parishes, their own schools, their own interests. But those early students also remember names like "Northside" and "Brookline," because the age of rivalries with North Catholic and South Hills Catholic had not yet begun.

The sports and activities which were to provide the tests of those rivalries, however, were in full swing. Intramural sports had begun early in 1927 and were later complemented by interscholastic competition. Football began early; Brother Benedict remembers it this way: ". . . Candidates for football were told to dress in old clothes and report to that part of the campus which is now the quadrangle. A large percentage of the student body, many weighing less than a hundred pounds, crowded the rock covered field. Remember, we

“THE SMOKE”

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 22, 1929

“THE SMOKE” OPENS NEW QUARTERS

Through the courtesy of our Brother Director the staff of THE SMOKE has been assigned new quarters which the increased demand for our monthly necessitated. Our sanctum is now located on the third floor in Office “C.” This is but another step in the development of our paper. The first issues of THE SMOKE were amateurish in comparison with the eight-page publication we have today, and with the kind co-operation of our friends and the enthusiasm of the student body we intend to make it even a greater paper. As a consequence the future issues of THE SMOKE will be awaited with great eagerness by our loyal subscribers. Our new quarters affords us an excellent opportunity to accomplish our earnest desires in this regard. Now we can work without distractions. The present location makes possible greater mutual help and criticism among the members of the staff. This is our latest step in our policy of progress. Watch for subsequent improvements and “Boast THE SMOKE!”

—Hayes Dever, 412.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

Many of the students of the school have never been in Office “A.”

Eighty per cent of the student body have never been late since their admission to school.

Seventy per cent of our students have good marks for all studies and tests.

We have a dramatic society in the school.

The work of our orchestra is a credit to the members, the director and the moderator.

THE SMOKE has its headquarters in Office “C.”

We will have a field day in June.

Bill Murphy does not borrow paper of late.

John McMahon has a table to himself in the Cafeteria.

Michael Joyce is once more in the fold with Room 205.

Hugh O'Neill is the candy kid.

Ten students who took part in the Oratorical Contest received cash prizes.

Mike O'Bryan was not in the Office for two weeks.

There is a room for THE SMOKE but no place for smoking.

Some Biology students tried to get a collection of flies in Forbes Field.

Every regular fellow in the school buys at least one SMOKE each month.

The Cafeteria furnishes excellent lunches and the prices are most reasonable.

Mike should tell us what became of the pet Collie.

Tom Carraher thinks a baseball pitcher contains drinking water for the players.

The famous last words may be funny now but they may be like Hamlet's ghost if we do not profit by them.

ALL FOOLS' DAY

The first of April, some do say
Is set apart for “All Fools' Day.”
But why people call it so
Nor I, nor they themselves, do know.
—(Selected.)

I quote the above lines merely as an introduction. Still, I can utilize them for another purpose: to emphasize the fact that very few people know just what “All Fools' Day” is. I do not profess to know, but I can outline a theory as to its origin.

It is a common belief that “All Fools' Day” is of French origin. During the reign of Charles IX, about 1564, the reformed calendar was adopted, necessitating the change of New Year's Day from April 1st to January 1st. There were certain individuals who objected to this. When they refused to celebrate New Year's on January 1, they were made the butt of many inconveniences on their April 1st. The practice emanated and hence the “April Fool” when the inevitable prank is perpetrated on our being the first day of the fourth month in the calendar year.

I have outlined, now let me define. “April Fool” is merely another way of saying, “know thyself.” April is not necessarily fraternized with the term “fool.” A man can be a fool every day in the year. I respect April as much as I respect May, but I loathe a fool in any month.

A fool is one who knows nothing and thinks less. This paraphrase does not present all contingencies; there are a plurality of species, for Fools, like all deformations are not uniform. They are too foolish to be so. There is the “Tomorrow Fool” who may be found in every by-street corner. Then the “Mourning Fool” is just a hang-nail on society's leniency. The “know it all fool” is a poisonous excrecence on the fact of humanity—the gunman material. The “school fool”—need I visualize?

So you see there are fools, and fools. I would be a “horing fool” if I attempted to name all. But before I close, I would prescribe a look into the mirror of one's own mind. If you see a fool, then need he be there? Re-build and then when next April Fools' Day rolls around, if you stop to pick up the “stranded catch” and the grinning imp shouts in your ear, “April Fool,” you may grin just as decorously, remarking “know thyself” and pass on.

LECTURE BY MR. P. J. BYRNE

On Friday the nineteenth we enjoyed the rare pleasure of a lecture on dramatics by Mr. P. J. Byrne. Mr. Byrne has studied the drama and the history of the stage during his whole life. He has evidently been an amniocent reader on the subject and has seen almost every worth-while play and actor of the past fifty years. His special interest seems to have centered around Shakespeare's productions and he displayed a superior knowledge of the best lines of the poet of Stratford on Avon. However, he has not failed to be awake to the best there is in modern dramas. Without any attempt at wit he held the audience, and like the man who essayed the blood-bound's role in “Uncle Tom's Cabin,” he made the lecture a howling success.

PRIZES FOR ORATORY

In the annual oratorical contest there were ten students competing. The honors were awarded as follows:

First prize, Ten Dollars—Thomas Rice

Second prize, Five Dollars—Richard Ginder

Third prize, Two and One-half Dollars—John Beyer

John Miller, John McGough, Otto Schroy, James McElligott, Philip Frank, Robert McLain and Kenneth Duffy, the also-spoke contenders were awarded one dollar each.

OUR RETREAT

Announcement has been made that our annual retreat will begin May 6. Rev. Father Eugene, O.M.Cap., will be the Spiritual Director of the retreat. His experience has been varied and we are ready to benefit by the sermons and spiritual direction he will give us.

were all freshmen, with no equipment, no spring training, no sense. . . . We took turns acting as dummies for a wild bunch of would-be tacklers. When the first one hit me, I decided to go out for chess.”

That early team was coached by Mike Gallagher. Practices were held at what is now the University of Pittsburgh's Cathedral of Learning. To keep his mind off those early won-loss records, Mike coached basketball and ran the cafeteria as well. Like three others on the early faculty and staff (i.e. Miss Beggy, Charlie Beggy and Mr. Andrew Einloth) Mike Gallagher remained at Central for over thirty years.

The 20's and 30's were a time of innovation in the extra-curricular area. Neither the depression nor the 1936 flood could chill the enthusiasm. Most of the present teams began then; for example tennis, golf, track, basketball, football and hockey. Non-athletic activities appeared then as well. School publications began quickly, as did homeroom newspapers. The Masque began its early amateur productions and many clubs were founded. The music department began the early band and social and religious functions were plentiful.

Those religious functions were complemented by the seminary program which Central conducted between 1936 and 1940 in conjunction with St. Vincent College, Latrobe.

the time of war

The Chemistry Laboratory

Like the world in general, Central faced World War II with commitment and prayer. Over two thousand Central graduates, more than half the alumni, fought in the conflict. The bronze plaque in the second floor foyer bears mute testimony to the commitment of the eighty alumni who gave their lives in the war.

The conduct of the war had both direct and indirect impact on Central. News of the war and of the actions of Central graduates permeated the school, while on the home front school life underwent certain adaptations. The Mothers' Guild was given an award for selling over one million dollars worth of war bonds; the rifle club and Morse Code Club were founded; Central students joined millions of others in regular air raid drills. Throughout the war, however, the school tried hard to remember that it was an institution of learning, and its students were only adolescents. Several firsts on the extra-curricular front helped turn the minds of Central students to more pleasant ideas.

In 1940, after a hiatus of several years, the track team at Central returned, and by 1949 proved its quality by winning the state championship. The Student Council appeared in 1941. Based on a student-written constitution, it quickly became an indispensable adjunct to Central social life. By 1943 the swimming team was begun, and the "natators," as the Viking seemed fond of calling them, went on to great success.

In 1944, girls came to Central; not to classes, of course, but for the first time they appeared in Central Catholic Masque productions. This proved to be a fortuitous coincidence, because only a few years later, Central staged the first in a long series of quality musicals.

The band was good enough to entertain on NBC national radio at half time in the Notre Dame game, and the first formal student handbook was published as a handy guide to all of this hectic activity. The handbook also indicated that school rules mandated the wearing of a tie. While observed in practice, the rule requiring ties did not appear until a 1942 decision on the part of the administration.

The decade ended on a high note with the state championship basketball team of 1948-49.

The Biology Laboratory

Tommy Dorsey had nothing on the Blue Knights of 1944.

A large Service Flag, emblematic of Central's contribution to the armed forces of our beloved country, was blessed with appropriate ceremonies on Sunday, October 25, 1942 the feast of Christ the King. The blessing was bestowed by the Reverend Henry McAnulty, C.S.Sp., '32, assisted by the Reverend John P. Fitzgerald, '34. Donald R. Geary, '39, president of Central Alumni Association, is seen holding the flag. William Dunn, '42, and Edward Flaherty, '42, assisted as acolytes. The color guard were members of the Duquesne University R.O.T.C.

This dubbed "Incubator Row" because of the many children residing there. The street which intersects the area of the present athletic field was an extension of Boundary Street. In the early 1950's the houses were razed.

the time of tradition

Since 1927 Central's many students have relied on public transportation. Shown here are the 70 Hamilton and 73 Highland "street cars." The route numbers remain but the rail transit was replaced completely by buses by 1967.

The fifties, in retrospect, seem quiet years at Central. While guns boomed in Korea and McCarthy ranted in Washington, the students entered a period of tradition and stability. On the surface, the Cold War was waged, and students were taught where Civil Defense rations were stored, and the locations of the nearest fall-out shelters. Underneath the furor, however, Central life seemed tranquil.

It was the time of living rosaries on the back field and the first Christmas formal. It was the time of rabid rivalries with North Catholic (for years the Sun-Tele printed a special Central-North edition), and a new rivalry with the young upstarts from South Hills Catholic.

While some things did change—the incandescent lights were replaced with fluorescent ones, new boilers made Charlie Beggy's life easier and the Masque made the transition from operettas to Broadway musicals—the keynote of the era seemed to be "more and better"

The cheerleaders of the mid-'40's display their garb.

Football practice in 1946.

This 1952 photo shows the basketball court which was located immediately behind the gym for several years.

The sporting life of the decade got off to an auspicious start with the undefeated cross-country team of 1950-51 and Coach Skorich's undefeated football team of 1951-52. In 1956, interscholastic baseball competition was added for the first time in over a decade.

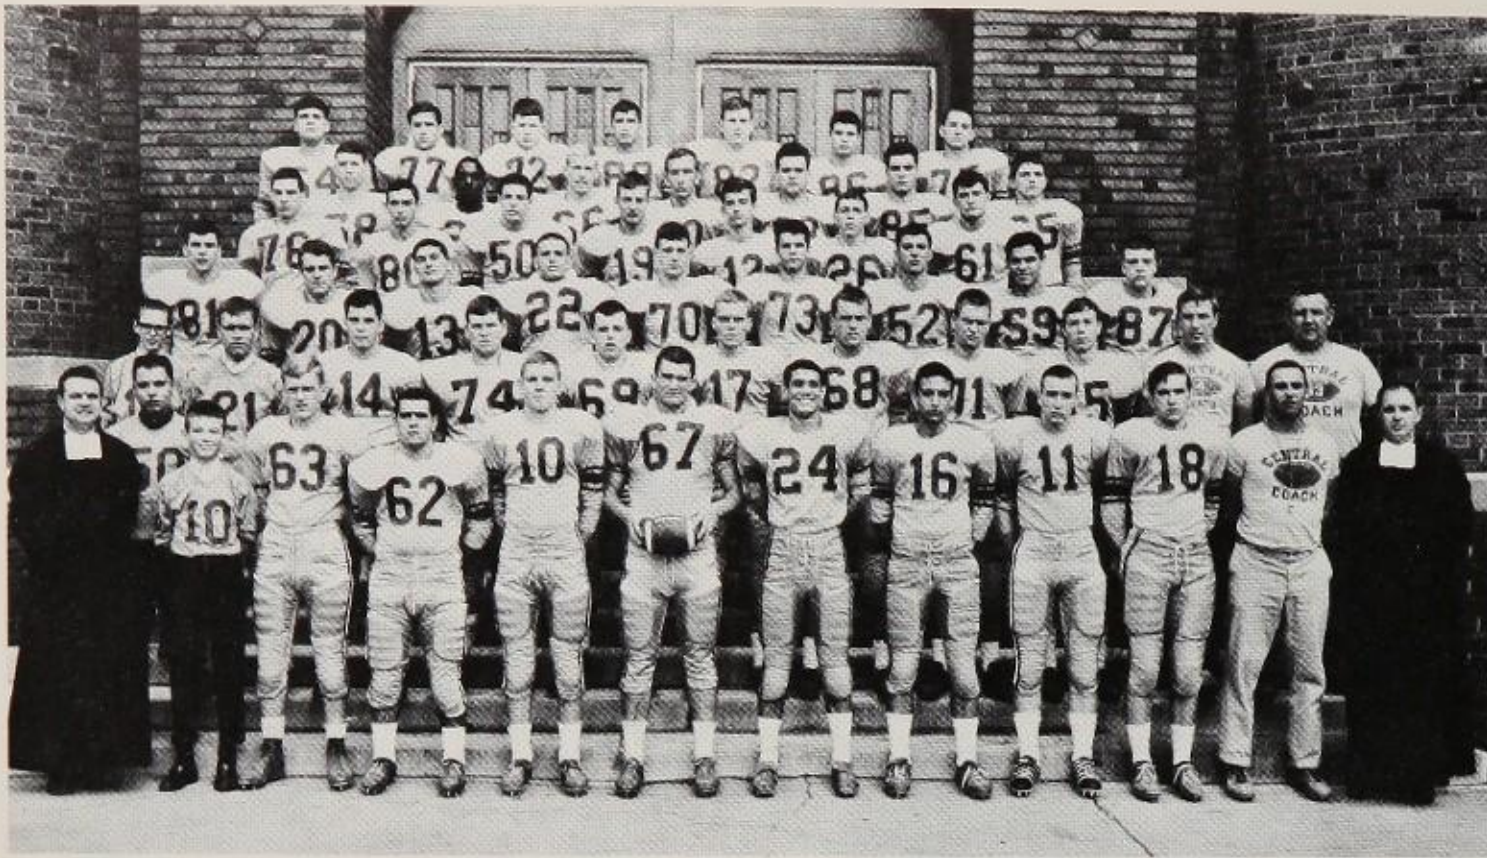

"More and better" also seemed to be the watchwords on the academic front. What were the students like? First of all, they were plentiful. The enrollment soared, despite strict entrance exams, and, by 1956, Central was to attain a school enrollment of over 1,900 students. What about quality? Mr. Andrew Einloth, then in his third decade as a teacher, made this evaluation: "The young men in Central today are as good, if not better, than the very best Central ever had."

With homeroom designations like 1SS and 3JC, Central entered into a formalized, three track academic program. It was divided into Art, Sciences and Commercial, but everyone was reminded, "Of course, even the business program is college prep."

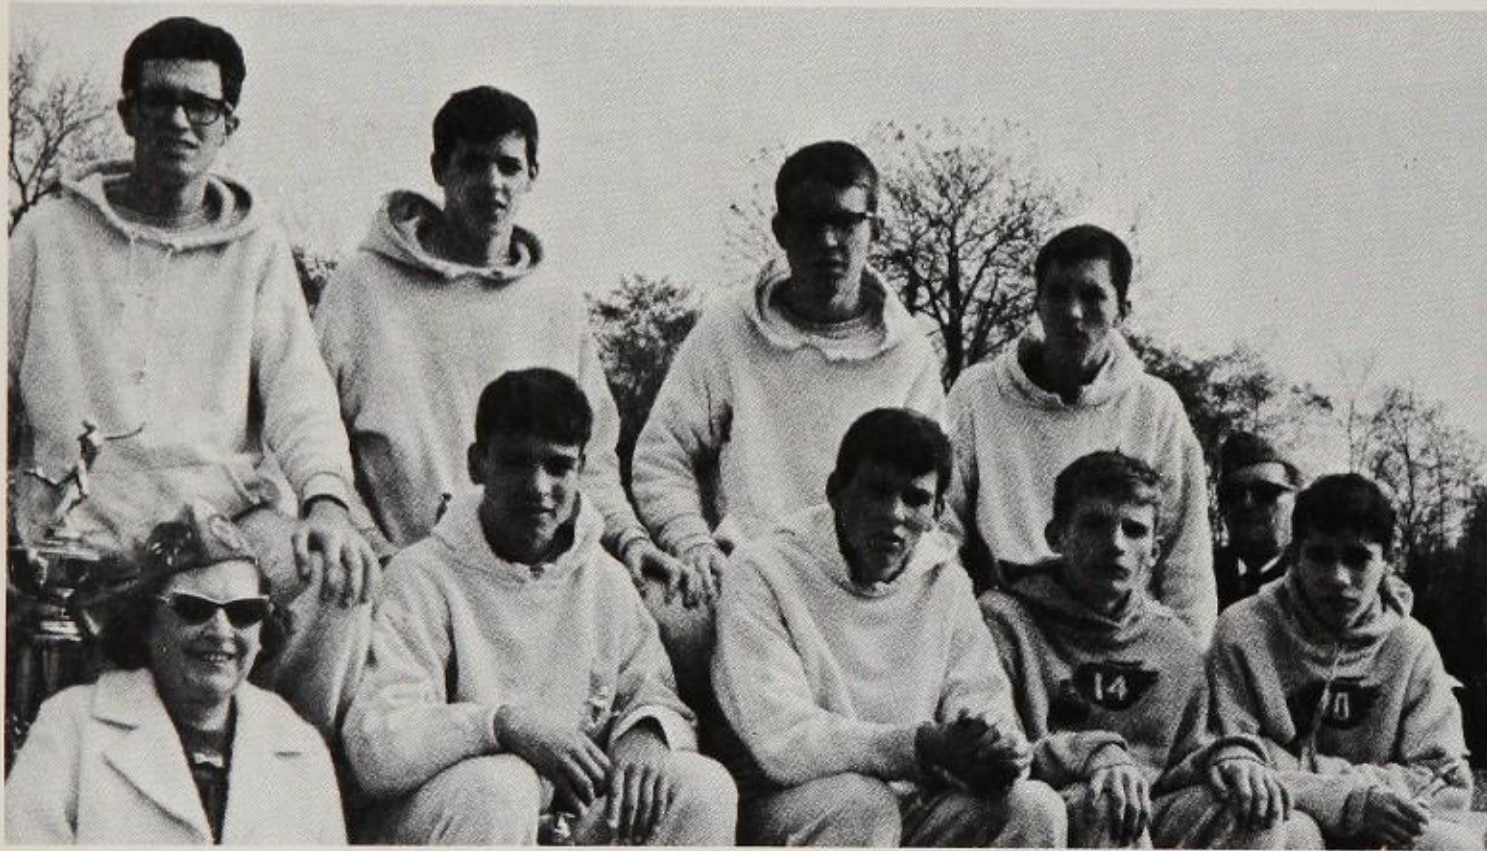

During the fifties, Marian devotions at Central were popularly expressed in the erection of "May altars."

Happiness is winning them all:

the time of change

"... Even the business program is college prep." Colleges. Their impact on Central life in the sixties was phenomenal. The goal was to get a college education; but colleges were becoming more discriminating. How do you improve a quality program to make it even more popular with the colleges? You begin by adding honors and advanced placement programs which result in college credit. Then you add electives and independent study on a scale not seen before in the more traditional structures of the fifties.

Perhaps continuing success in extra-curricular activities will help. Well, begin with state championships in track in 1964 and 1968. Add state championships in cross country in 1964, '65 and '67. If that is not enough, throw in an undefeated state championship football team in 1964-65, and top it off with the National Championship in Forensics for two consecutive years in 1967 and 1968.

The unrest of the colleges filtered down to Central as well. The students made demands. But the demands of quality education were just as loud, and more insistent. The physical plant underwent massive change. The chemistry and physics labs were renovated. The biology lab was moved to the fourth floor, the former site of the library. The library was improved, expanded and moved to the second floor west wing it presently occupies. The English and History

Central got a new look during the summer and Christmas of 1973. The new windows assist significantly in meeting energy-conserving demands.

Resource Centers were added and the audio-visual materials of the school were expanded and consolidated. Perhaps the most striking change was that for the first time, lay teachers formed a majority of the faculty. The quality and commitment of the lay staff complemented the longstanding dedication of the Christian Brothers in maintaining Central's pursuit of excellence.

While inflation skyrocketed, tuition imposed an often heavy burden, and enrollment moved back toward the 1200 mark, Central labored long and successfully to provide what Bishop Boyle dreamed of years ago; a quality education for future Christian leaders.

the time of celebration

The seventies have brought a maturity to Central. The school, as it attempts to stabilize its enrollment, seems more calm and assured. It has a feeling of confidence and comfort without being complacent.

Central's entry into the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League guarantees its commitment to a quality sports program. The high level of participation in the diverse intramural program testifies to Central's desire to provide an outlet for all students. The new physical education building (which some maintain is forty-nine years overdue), will enable Central to expand and improve both of these programs.

Groundbreaking for Central's new physical education building—to cost some $850,000—was held Friday afternoon, December 10, 1976.

The new facility is to be constructed as a joint project of the diocese and Central's alumni. Set for completion by December of 1977, it will represent the major observance of our year-long 50th anniversary celebration, which opened last fall.

The diocese, through Bishop Leonard, provided a considerable initial grant for the new physical education building.

The contribution came through an educational fund established from the estate of the late Thomas F. Burke. A memorial in his honor will be erected within the new building.

The need for such a building has long been evident. The present gym, located in the school building and including some 400 seats, is completely inadequate and below standard size.

Construction of a new gym was one of the recommendations made in a recent evaluation of Central by the Middle Atlantic States Association of Secondary Schools.

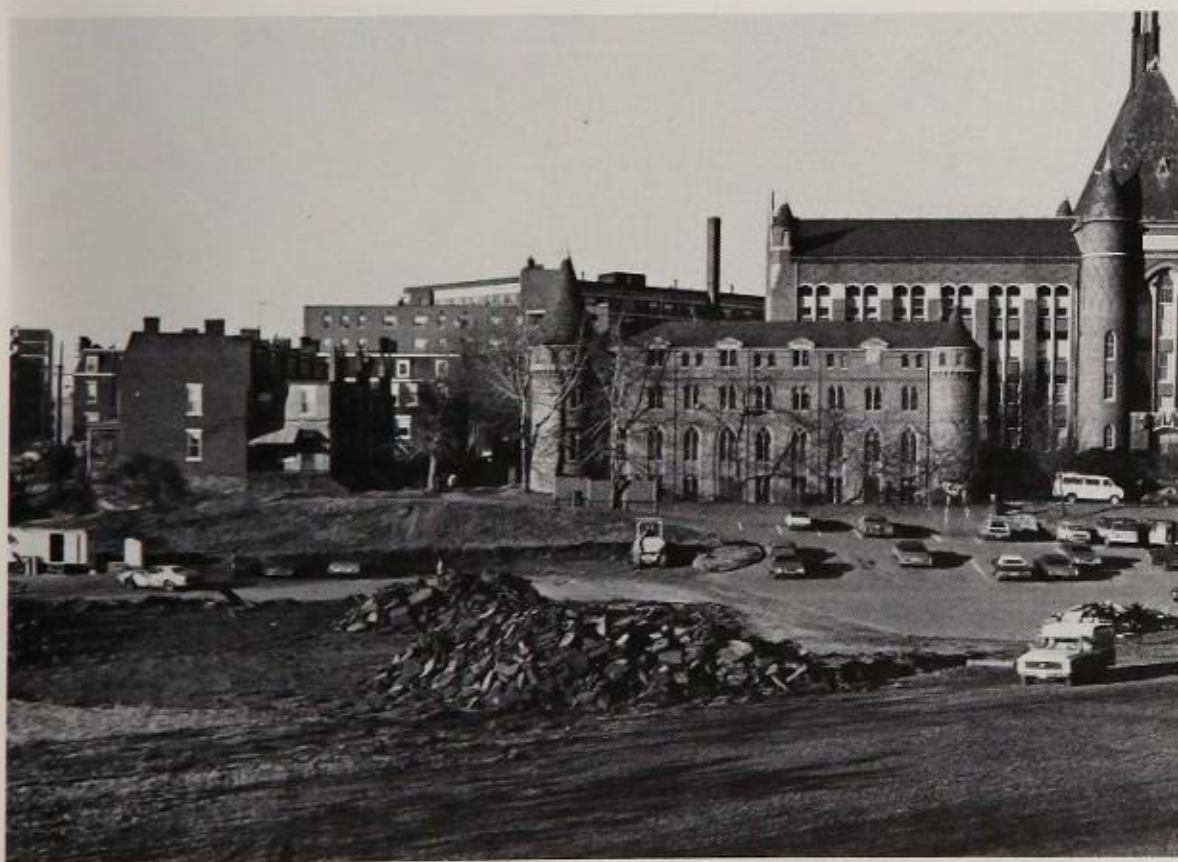

Student Council President Gregory Linnelli presents Bishop Leonard with a school plaque commemorating the occasion.

Bishop Leonard, assisted by Brother Benedict Oliver, FCS, principal of Central Catholic High School, breaks ground for the new physical education building. Joining in the ceremony are from left Leo Donnelly, assistant director of the diocesan planning office; William F. Pleva, architect for the building and a member of Central's class of 1946; Brother Benedict; Joseph A. Massaro, general contractor and member of the Central 1953 graduating class; Bishop Leonard; John Cicco, (rear) diocesan superintendent of schools; Dr. Robert A. Labriola, president of the board of advisors for Central Catholic; Gene Odato, director of the diocesan office of properties; and Fr. Hugh J. Lang, assistant superintendent of schools, secondary education, and a member of Central's 1948 class.

The bulldozer begins clearing the way.

The new physical education building will be constructed on the site of the parking lot behind the school, next to the practice field located off Neville Street.

Included in the facility will be a gym with seating for 800, a press box, locker rooms for physical education classes and for varsity athletes, a weight room, wrestling practice room, shower rooms, equipment storage rooms and offices for coaches, physical education instructors and intra-mural directors.

Tentative plans call for the present gym to be renovated sometime in the future, possibly providing space for expanding the school's art department and establishing a multi-media area.

The new structure in appearance will complement the existing Central Catholic buildings. It will feature an all-brick reddish-brown exterior, with an all-brick lobby as in the school.

In addition to meeting the main need—improvement of the physical education department—the building will provide ample space for Central's wide-ranging intra-mural sports program, and such games as basketball, wrestling and volleyball. (The students will continue to use Frick Pool for their intra-mural swimming activities).

Academically, Central's recent evaluation by the Middle States Evaluation Committee enabled the school to once again assess its programs. More importantly, it gave Central the chance to re-evaluate and re-commit itself to its goals and philosophy.

And the students? Well, as one alumnus, now on the teaching staff put it; "The students are always the same—and always different. They're Central students, and that's a good thing to be."

the principals

Central's fifty years is extraordinary not for its length, but for the quality of its gifted administrators and dedicated faculty. There have been fifteen principals and twelve vice-principals in fifty years. Each of these men with his own administrative style has been an apt personification of Central Catholic—its solidarity and its essential strength and tradition-steeped foundation that for the past fifty years has provided thousands of young men the means to a meaningful life. Prevailing over all has been a tangible sense of unity, loyalty and concern. Central Catholic owes its wholesome vitality in no small measure to the leadership of these educators whose vision and drive ignited and continued it all.

the archi- tecture

In point of style, Central Catholic is of Modified Normandy design, which suggests the Gothic converted to domestic purposes. Although not so austere as churches in this style, the fundamental sonorous quality is retained.

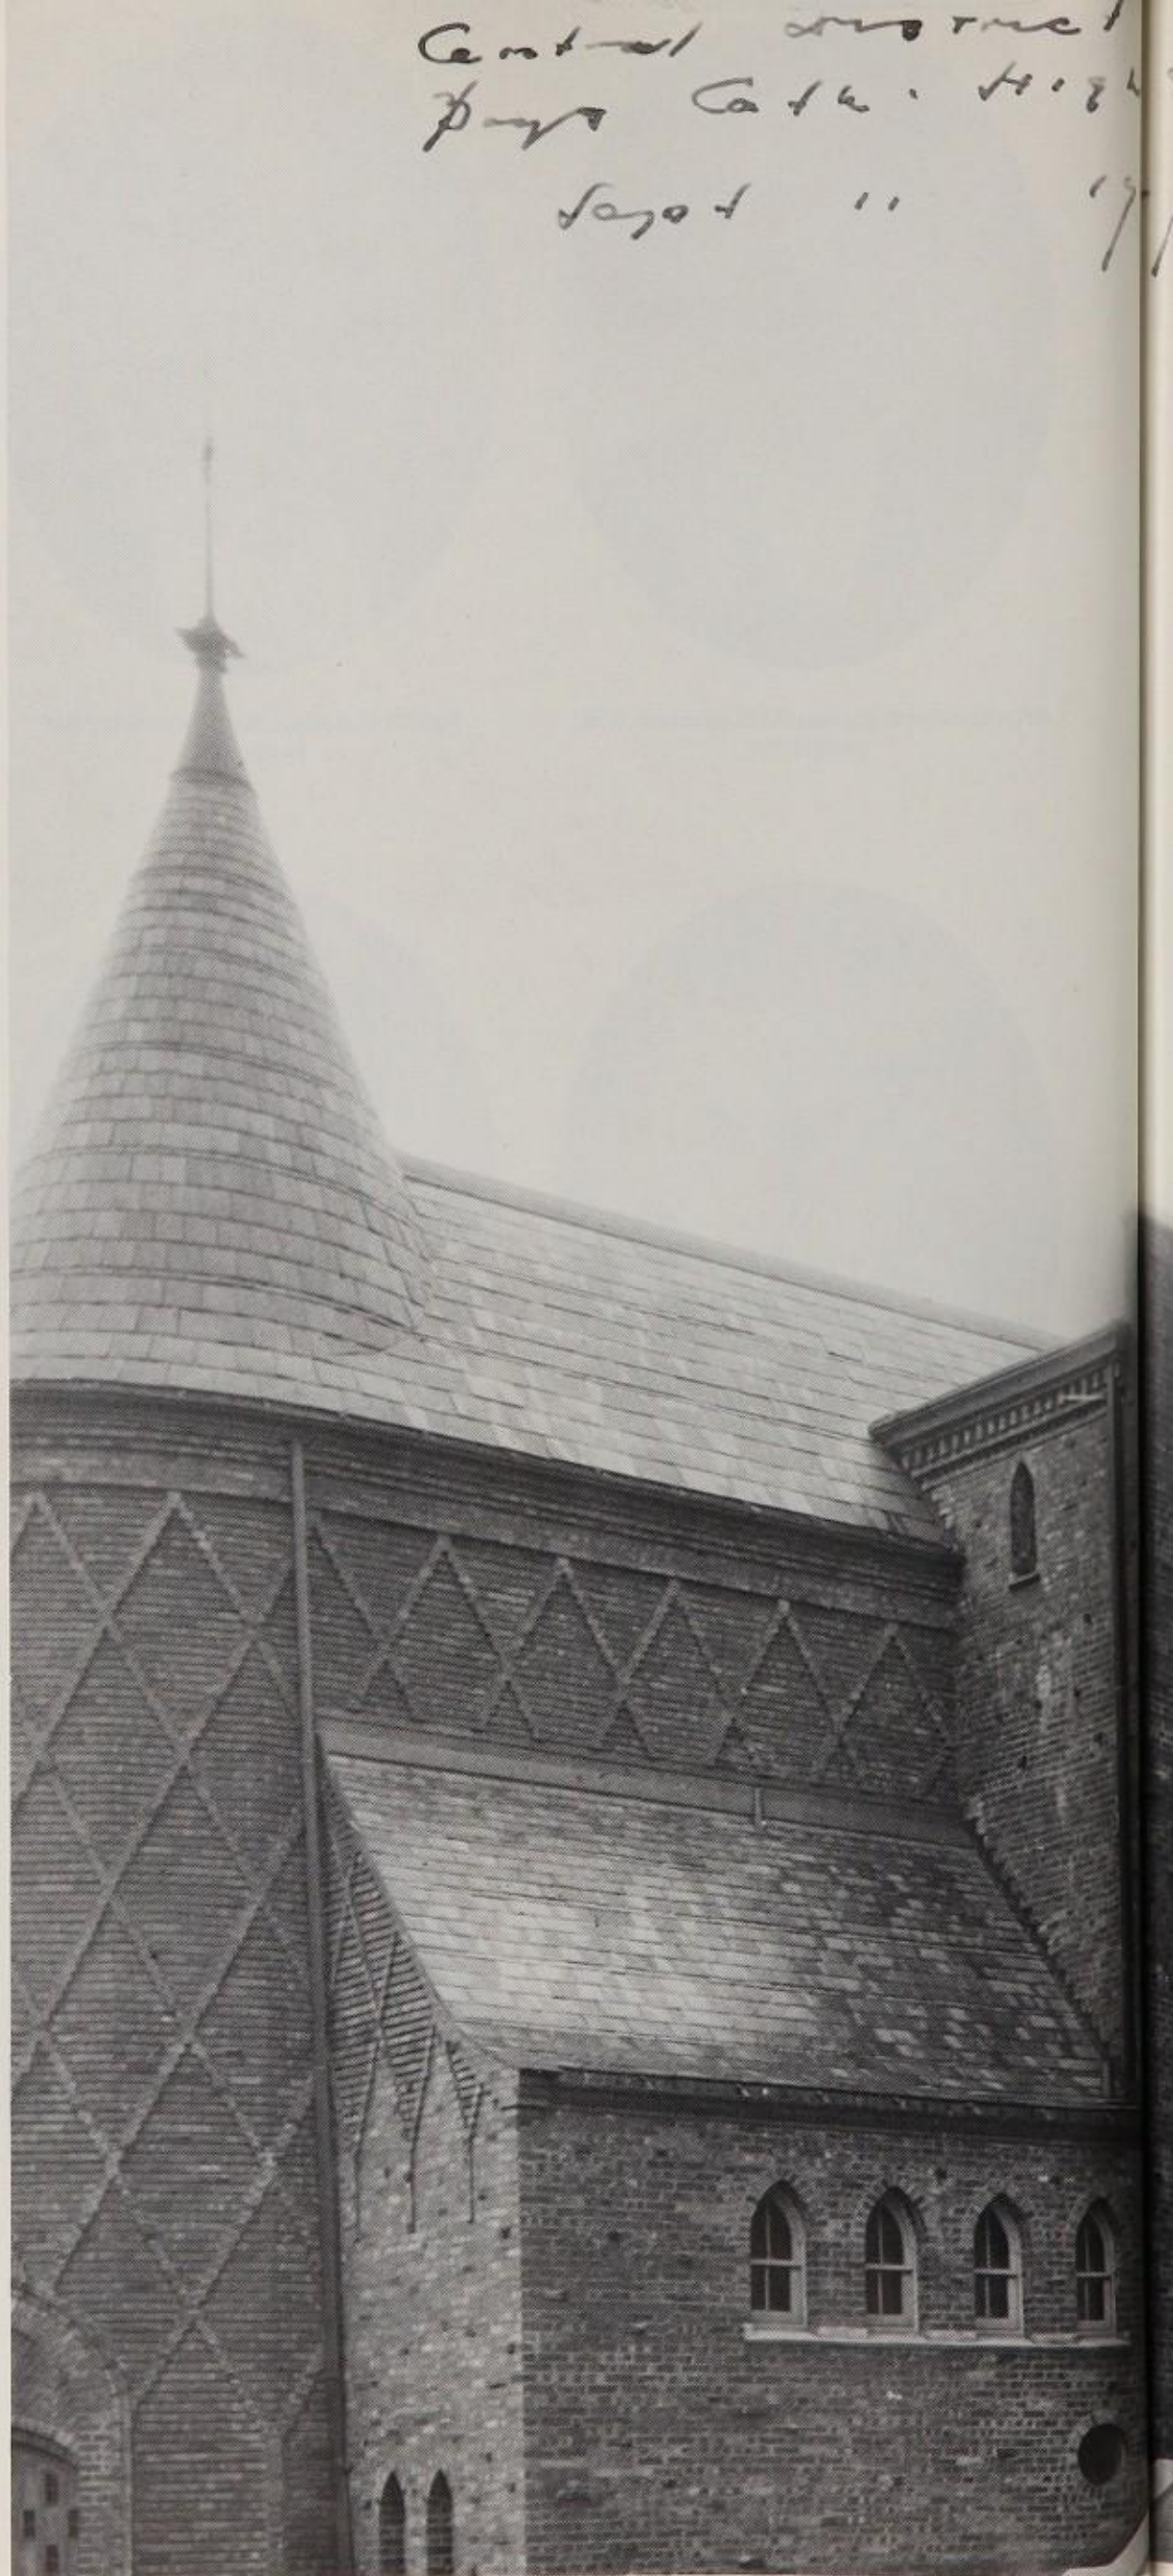

The exterior, unlike so many urban structures calculated to impress on the main highway only, presents appealing silhouettes regardless of the point of view. Common brick is made to assume an uncommon aspect. The bricks near the fire, ordinarily discarded because they are dark and rough, here introduce a diversity of texture in the high walls.

In the main facade facing Fifth Avenue, black bricks develop a diamond-shaped pattern above the buttressed windows.

The treatment of the windows is vital to the building's distinction.

Actually, the structure depends on the wall for support, hence the buttresses which strengthen the walls have a genuine function. The buttresses maintain the unity of the long facade. Within their deep embrasures, the windows required for lighting are muted into unobtrusive interruption.

At the entrance, two towers flank the door. These towers, in turn, form the base of the central tower motif which is crowned by a fleche of immaculate symmetry. This fleche, pierced like a lantern, consummates the cumulative effect of the building as it rises from fortress-like strength to terminate in a gesture of unequivocal grace.

On the east side of the structure, a splendid expanse of wall broken only by a single window majestically buttressed, extends to the full five stories of the building's height. A tower on which bricks project to form all-over diamond shapes, and the entrance to the auditorium emphasize the architectural high points.

The auditorium completely agrees with the exterior architecture of the building. Plain brick walls are undisturbed by extraneous decoration.

The architects have placed at intervals three courses of red and black brick set in herringbone bond against golden mortar. This simple device is sufficient contrast to the ordinary stretcher and header bond with its neutral cement mortar to produce virile decoration.

The proscenium arch in the auditorium is, like all the masonry openings, pointed. A plaster decoration of figures and foliage in the Gothic style forms a tympanum to bridge the proscenium arch.

Symbolic medallions in brilliant glass mosaic follow the path of this arch. Stained glass windows set in stone arches repeat this richer color tone along the walls, and break the harshness of the outer light. The windows represent the various countries from which the Catholic people of Pittsburgh originally migrated. Inscribed on each window are the seal of the country, the names of its patron saint and those of two of its most famous Catholic citizens. The countries represented on the left side of the auditorium (moving from front to rear), are Ireland, Spain, Germany, Yugoslavia, Hungary, Austria, Czechoslovakia, and Switzerland. On the right side, moving in the same order are England, Italy, Poland, France, Bohemia, Lithuania, the Netherlands, and Belgium.

Perhaps not frequently noticed between Offices A and B are the beautiful decorative plaster impressions of the Eight Beatitudes—centrally located and central to the Christian spirit for which the school exists.

The feature of the auditorium not duplicated elsewhere in the city, is the ceiling. The architects have transformed the mechanical necessity of roof trusses into explicit, decorative objects. Instead of accepting the series of ordinary stock gusset plates used in joining the members of the truss, the architects sought a more aesthetic solution. The strain was estimated, then the gusset plates were cut into coped cusping which gives a trefoil design. Next the steel trusses were painted blue, and finally a design in gold was imposed. The ceiling, which one views through lively design of the trusses, is of painted wood. Blue and gold shields are inscribed with the names of the contributing parishes that made the building possible.

The room evokes imaginatively medieval times. The composition of this room and the exterior demonstrates well that the co-operative art is architecture.

Central's second basketball team—entirely Froshs and Sophs 1928.

Organized student activity began at Central just two weeks after the first day in 1927, with a call for freshman football. Most of the boys who answered the call had no previous athletic experience but, after several weeks of training under Michael J. Gallagher, formed two teams—The “Blue” and The “Gold.” The teams finished 2-2.

The traditional Central—North rivalry began in 1942 with a scoreless tie, but this was no indication of the offensive battle to come. Overall, Central is 14-16-5 in the series.

Over the years, the football team has mastered two undefeated seasons and a state championship. The first one came in 1951-52, led by eventual pro-coach Nick Skorich and players, quarterback Don Schaefer and fullback Ed Vereb who were to become all-college. Then, there was the 1964-65 season. The team, led by head coach Martin Apostolico, finished 10-0, including an impressive 54-6 win over North and a State Championship. Central's football program has also contributed over 500 college football players over 50 years and one pro, John Babinecz from the class of 1968.

Despite Central's success in football however, they were forced to play in Catholic leagues under the P.I.A.A., rather than the highly competitive W.P.I.A.L. After many years of hard work, Central was admitted into the league in 1974 and remains there today.

Over the past 50 years, Central has compiled a 219-172-29 record.

Basketball was introduced at Central on an intramural basis in December, 1927. This activity helped Mike Gallagher, the first coach, pick the first squad. The 1928-29 season ended with a 7 & 3 record. Their record was improved to 11 & 11 in the 1930-31 season.

The only tie in Central's history came against Duquesne Prep after six periods of overtime and a final score of 26-26 at Duquesne Gardens.

The 1948-49 basketball team went further than any of their predecessors by winning the PCIAA title.

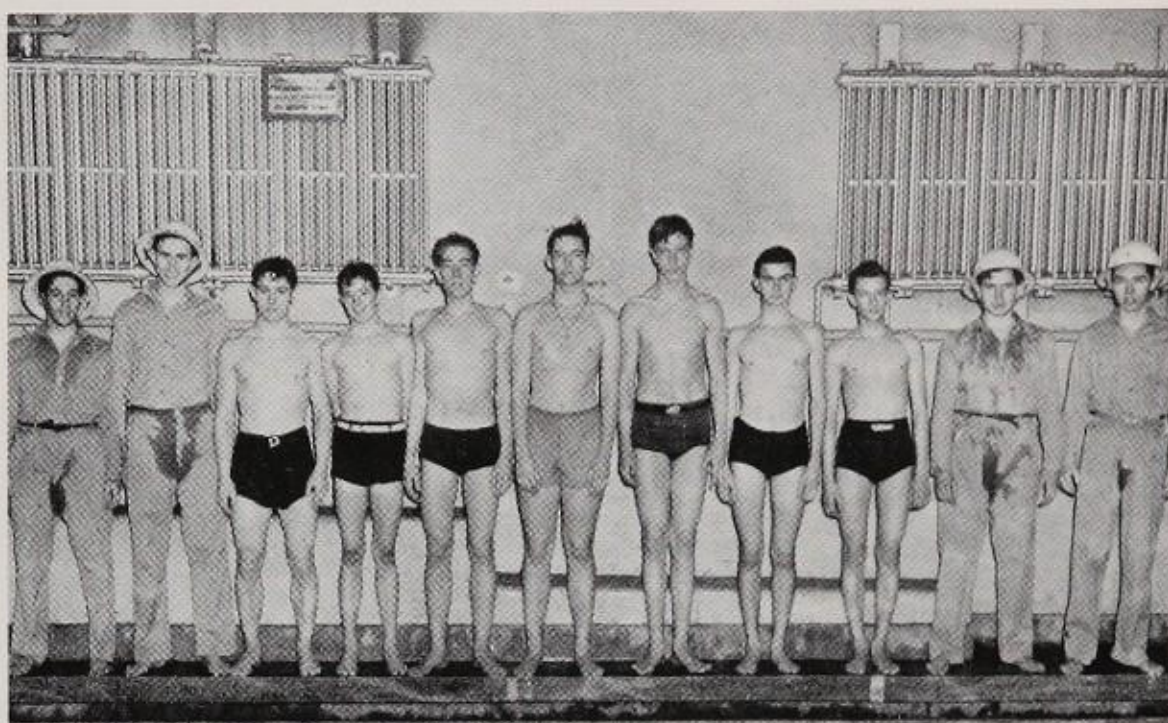

Then, in 1964, Central's basketball team came closer to a state title than any other team in our school's history. After winning the PCIAA's double crown, Diocesan and Western Regional Championships, they lost the game after double overtime.

In the spring of 1929, two years after the school opened, track was introduced to the school body. The "team" had a slow start, for only one boy joined.

From then until 1940 track faded away. It was not until March 9, 1940 that Central entered a team against Mt. Lebanon and Canonsburg in which Central lost. However, Robert Burdardt distinguished himself by scoring over half of Central's points under the coaching of Mr. William Devine, then gym instructor.

This team of the 1940's practiced at Pitt's Field House on Saturday mornings and the third floor corridor of the school during the winter weeks. In warmer weather they moved to Schenley Oval.

The cross-country team was born in the fall of 1941 under the direction of Brother Gavinus Paul. In 1944, after three years of coaching cross-country, Brother Paul switched to coaching track. Brother Flamian Emery was appointed assistant track and cross-country coach. In this same year Central took the State Catholic Championship in Reading, Pa.

Military Swimming—1942

This swimming course, given by the Red Cross, was another one of the school activities sponsored by the Mothers' Guild of Central Catholic. The course was given to the students who would sooner or later enter into the services of their country.

The course, which lasted for twenty-two hours, was given at the Soho pool every Tuesday night from seven to ten, under the direction of Mr. Ward, Mr. O'Brien, and Mr. Paul, with Brother E. James acting as moderator.

Then in 1956 Central won the AMA Junior Championship. Standouts for this team were Pat Murphy and Bob Penny who still hold Central's 100 yard dash record.

In 1960 Central's weight men led the team to the PCIAA State Track Title.

From 1962-68 Central's cross-country team racked up 18 championship victories. In these years Central won three State Championships—1964, 1965, and 1967. In 1964 Central was undefeated running against 67 different teams and winning all duel meets plus five championship meets. In total over these years the duel meet record was 50 wins and 4 losses.

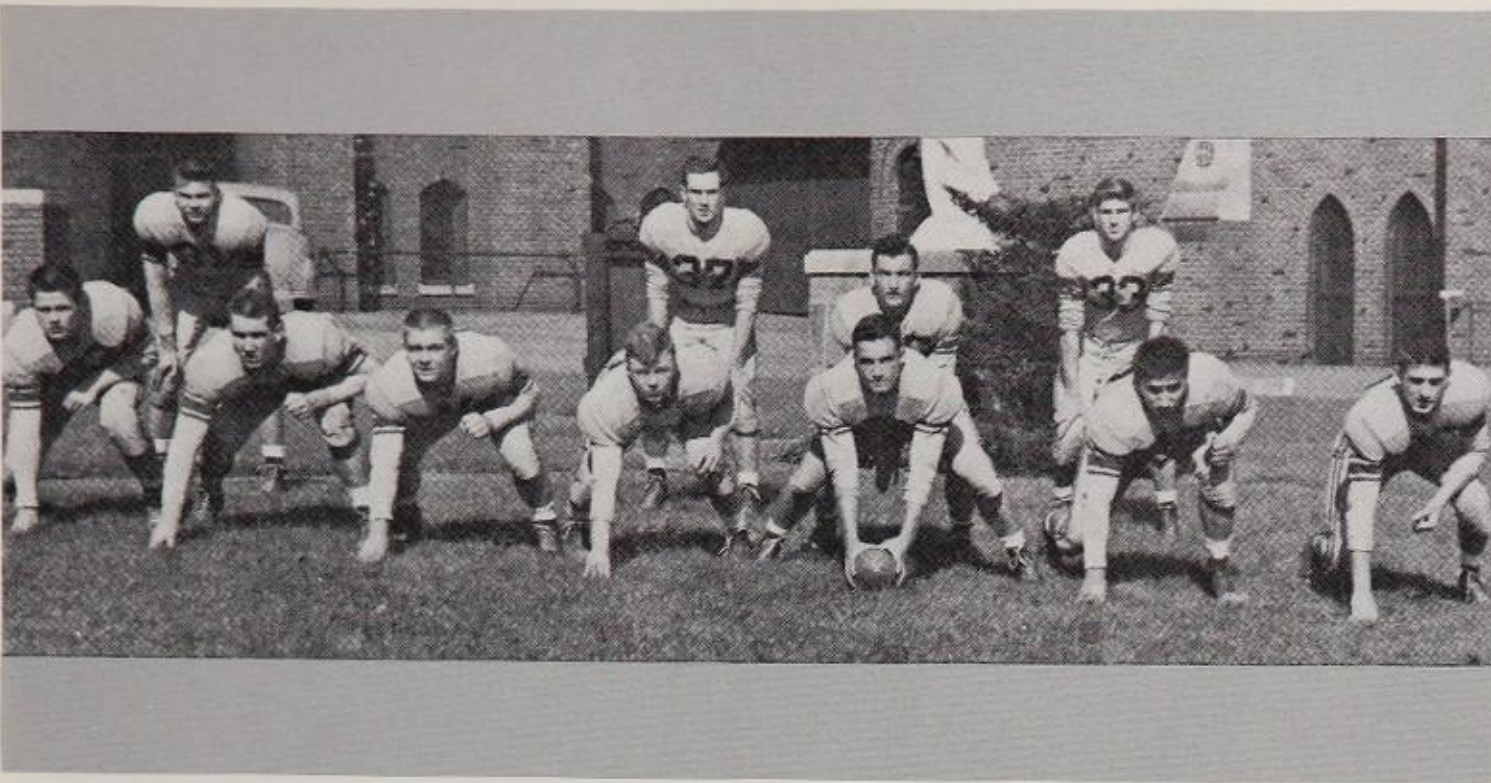

Between 1963-1969, Central's track teams won 18 championship meets winning 36 matches to their single defeat in duel meet championships. Over these years Central was state champion in 1964 and 1968.

Recent standouts and record-holders were Bob Lee and Mark Studnicki of the Class of 1975.

The Chesteron Society of 1940-41—forerunner of the Forensics Society.

Central's Invitational Public Speaking Tournament in 1962 was one of the most efficiently organized affairs of its kind, thanks to Brother Rene and the invaluable assistance of Frank Mullen and Harry Tuminello.

Dr Joseph Rauterkus

The music program at Central started in 1932 with an orchestra under the direction of Mr. Herman Ehlers. A former director of the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, Dr. Joseph Rauterkus, took over the direction of Central's orchestra in 1934. It was not until the 1937-38 school year that a band was organized by Brother Edward of Jesus. Messrs. Harry Hoehle and Robert Pupa were the music instructors while

Mr. H. Eckles of the Pittsburgh Fire Department served as the marching instructor. The first band had twenty-eight members and made its first public appearance at the Central-Johnstown football game at Peabody Field on Thanksgiving Day, 1938. The uniforms were donated by the Mothers' Guild.

In 1941, Brother Felinian Thomas made another addition to Central's music program by organizing the Blue Knights.

The first dramatics presentation at Central was in 1929. It consisted of a series of three one-act plays: "The Saracen," "The Wizard of Wall Street," and "The Thirteenth Domino."

The first "senior" play, "The Go-Getter," was presented by the class of '31.

Another first occurred in 1944 with "Arsenic and Old Lace." It was directed by Clement Kiessel, vice president of the Catholic Theater Guild. A successful attempt was made in the operetta field in 1947 with "My Maryland," produced by E. Lawrence Burrows, manager and director of the Pittsburgh Savoyards.

Forensics started at Central in the form of the Chesterton Society in 1941. The members of the Chesterton Society discussed the works of celebrated authors and worked at the art of public speaking on their own radio show. This Society, under Brother E. Pius, lasted one year before becoming the Debating Society under Brother George Thomas.

Synonomous with Forensics at Central have been such names as Brother F. John (O'Brien), and Brother G. Rene Sterner. Since 1960, when he was an assistant moderator, Brother Rene has put Central Catholic on the map of the forensic world with the numerous local and national awards his teams have won. During Brother's tenure as a vice-principal from 1967 to 1971, Forensics was coached by Mr. Eugene Kail.

The first publication Central put out was "The Smoke" in January, 1928 with John McGough (now Brother Benedict) as editor. "The "Smoke" was changed to "The Towers" in 1928. "The Towers" was originally a monthly literary-magazine with Paul Wadell as editor and Brother D. Joseph as moderator. "The Towers" remained a newspaper until 1930 when it became the first school yearbook under the editorship of Charles G. Byrne and moderation of Thomas A. Dilhool.

After "The Towers" became a year-book, there was no school newspaper until 1934 when "The News" was started. "The News" lasted until 1936 and was replaced in 1937 by the still-present "Viking." "The Viking's" first editor was G. Paul William Fitzgerald and the first moderator was Bro. Gildatus Thomas.

The 1939 "Viking" set a trend of awards by winning a Quill and Scroll Society International First Place Award for Scholastic Journalism under the editorship of Paul Lohmeyer. The 1944-45 "Viking," keeping with the trend, won second place in the National Scholastic Press Association Awards.

Several individual awards occurred under editor James Beymer in 1945-46. The first of these was Michael Diebold the news editor. He won third place in the regional contest sponsored by the Pittsburgh Press. Another winner was William Carey who was awarded first place in the Press contest's editorial division. James Horner, sports editor, won the award for the best high school sports writer of 1947 by the Scholastic Magazine's contest. Under James Beymer, "The Viking" made a rating of "excellent" in the National Scholastic Press Association judging.

the songs of central

The "March of the Towers" was created in 1932—words by Brother E. Pius, F.S.C., music by Felix A. Kusebauch. This Alma Mater remained until 1958 when it was replaced by "Under Your Towers"—composed by Brother Francis Emery, F.S.C., Ph.D.

"Under Your Towers" was heard sung throughout Central until 1972, when Brother Benedict Oliver, F.S.C. adapted "O God of Truth" as the school hymn.

Also, although not a part of Central's ceremonial tradition, "The Fight Song" sung to the tune of "On Wisconsin," has been an important part of student activity over the years.

SCHOOL HYMN

O God of Truth, whom science seeks
And reverent men adore,
Who brightens every earnest mind
Of every clime and shore,
Dispel the gloom of error's night,
Of ignorance and fear,
Until true wisdom from above
Shall make life's pathway clear.

O Lord of Love, whose Spirit dwells
In every human breast,
Whom love, and love alone, can know,
In whom all hearts find rest,
Help us to spread your glorious reign
'Til greed and hate shall cease,
And kindness dwells in human hearts,
And all the earth find peace.

CANTUS TURRIUM

MARCH OF THE TOWERS

Hail, to Central Catholic,
Alma Mater cheer!
Wave her Blue and Gold high
And sound her praises more each year.

Marching to do battle,
Let her colors fly,
Love and fondly cherish
Our own Central Catholic High.

God and country foremost,
Let the truth prevail.
Manhood strong and loyal,
Will Alma Mater never fail.
Onward, then and forward
Error's force defy
Sound her fame and glory,
Hail to Central Catholic High.

ALMA MATER

Under Your towers
Moves life's eternal May,
Pursuing truth and knowledge
From roots of dateless day.
And chant we to Central.
And raise our banner blue
To honor the mem'ry
Of all we hold so true.

Lively with cheer
We turn in thought to you.
The quadrangle we circled
In days when cares were few.
Echoing tribute
Honors and trophies sound
Silently of vict'ry
And of tradition crown'd.

THE FIGHT SONG

On to victory, on to victory,
Central Catholic High
Blue and Gold so brave and bold
Our colors proudly fly.
We're behind you, routing for you
Fight with all you might Sing, cheer and fight, fight, fight to victory.

'WHERE ARE THEY NOW?'

From the Class of '31 came Brother F. Benedict McGough, who joined the faculty in English and religion in the mid-forties and, except for a few years in the fifties, has remained with us, now teaching driver education.

La Salle College, Philadelphia, has benefited from the expertise of many former Central faculty members. Brother F. Joseph taught German and religion in the smoggy thirties . . . Brother E. Anthony Wallace, often confused with Fritz Zivic, served as principal from 1946 to 1952. He was instrumental in bringing the Sacred Heart boys (almost 100 of them) into Central and in purchasing land behind the school for a parking lot and playing field . . . Brother Edward Patrick Sheekey, only living member of the founding faculty of fourteen Christian Brothers in 1927, taught English and religion . . . In the fifties and sixties Brother E. Austin taught physics and math, while Brother F. Lewis taught history and religion. Brother Francis Emery, now Vice-President of La Salle College, was hard at work teaching English and religion and moderating the Viking and the Towers . . . Latin was the forte of Brother D. Richard, whereas biology was Brother E. Richard's . . . Still teaching Latin and Greek is Brother G. Jude.

Brother D. Paul, former Director of Athletics in the 1940's has been teaching at West Catholic in Philadelphia for several years.

The missions claim several former teachers. Brother G. Edward, Latin and religion instructor from the mid-forties until 1959, teaches at De La Salle University, Manila, Philippines, as does Brother Gabriel Cecilian, math teacher and vice-principal in the late forties . . . Also serving in the Philippines is Brother F. Thomas, who taught math in the late fifties and early sixties . . . Principal from 1941 to 1943, Brother Denis of Mary worked for many years in the Philippines and is now in Nicaragua.

Several laymen and one laywoman have made deep impressions on Central students in the past. Miss Mary Jane Beggy was librarian from 1930 to 1961, providing a much-needed mother figure in an all-male atmosphere . . . Now retired and living in Pittsburgh, Mike Gallagher was on the staff from 1927 to 1965, serving as football coach and cafeteria manager . . . Since deceased are Mr. Andrew Einloth and Mr. Francis Collins. Mr. Einloth taught German and English from the mid-thirties through the mid-sixties. He died in 1972.

. . . A graduate with eight letters in sports and the first grad to head the coaching staff, Franny Collins coached football and basketball and taught physical education for many years until his death in 1974.

One of the giants of the thirties was Brother Francis Azarias, first vice-principal, 1929-1939. Having influenced for good many Central students, he eventually joined the La Salle College faculty, becoming head of the Education Department, where he exerted tremendous influence until his death in 1965 . . . Two long-time memorable teachers were Brother E. Vincent Hurley and Brother G. William Sheekey, whose brothers, Edward Patrick and Felix John, also taught at Central. Brother E. Vincent, a veteran of twenty-eight consecutive years and a long-lasting alumni moderator besides, never lost his inimitable brogue through countless history and religion classes. Brother passed away in 1969 . . . Brother G. William, "Blind Bill" to the wags and kind to all, taught several subjects but is best remembered for Latin and religion. Very proud of having taught for twenty-nine consecutive years and thirty-some altogether, he first joined the faculty in the thirties and died here in 1971 . . . His brother, F. John, was an instructor in math and religion in the late thirties and early forties . . . A living legend in his own time, Brother Galbert Francis, "the Vulture," taught here in the thirties. Whatever he taught, he must have been impressive, for he could lift two typewriters simultaneously, and often did. We assume his teaching was as mighty. Brother D. Jeremy McNamara, beloved principal from 1964 to 1966 was the first former student of Central to be appointed to that position. Brother was eventually to become the provincial of the Brothers in 1968. He died on November 25, 1972.

BROTHER BERNARDIN,
F.S.C.

Brother Bernardin, presently on the staff as full time supervisor of the English Resource Center of the library, has spent a total of thirty-four of his thirty-eight years as a Christian Brother at Central Catholic. Brother was on the faculty from 1940 to 1949 and, after a one year stint at LaSalle College High School in Philadelphia, returned to Central for another four years. After an assignment to West Catholic in Philadelphia from 1954 to 1956, Brother returned to Central where he has since remained.

In paying tribute to this remarkable man's dedication to Central Catholic, we not only commemorate his service in a sizable period of time, measurable nonetheless in years, days and hours, but also in that which is incalculable in human terms and not subject to any time evaluation which is measurable.

Over the years of Brother's dedication as a teacher of religion and English and as a moderator of the Viking newspaper, God alone knows the extent of the devotion of Brother Bernardin.

Perhaps the 1964 yearbook dedication to Brother best sums up the admiration in which he is held by thousands of alumni. . . . "The greatness of Brother Bernardin is paradoxical and difficult to explain. There is no gaudy superficiality about him. Yet he is spectacular—without spectacle. He is an educator, not an entertainer. Yet hundreds of alumni fondly remember him after years at Central have become a distant memory. Perhaps it is the inexplicable effectiveness of his soft-spoken voice that impresses the minds of Centralites. Perhaps it is his calm passion for thoroughness that accounts for the permanence of the impressions he casts without fanfare. Whatever it is, we can be certain that Brother Bernardin personifies those intangible qualities that make Central great."

a central legend

Bishop Norbert Gaughan and Charlie share a moment together at the open house following the anniversary Mass.

An era passed in September 1974 when Charlie Beggy retired as chief engineer and all-around maintenance man at Central Catholic. If anyone still living deserves the name "Mr. Central," is it Charlie. When did he first appear on the scene? Older graduates will remember Miss Mary Jane Beggy, his sister, who was librarian for thirty years. It was Charlie who designed and built the shelves around 1930 for what was then the library, Room 413. As a carpenter, Charlie did odd jobs around school in the 1930's until he signed on as a major-domo of maintenance in 1938.

Take a walk around Central today and you will see evidence of Charlie's handiwork. Go from the shower in the boiler room to the paneled cafeteria to the former stage floor now in the band room to the shed in the quadrangle which he designed as a garage for the Brothers' car. He kept the boilers running and the heat up in the winter, repaired broken pipes and mopped up occasional floods, cut grass and watered lawns, replaced cracked windows, called in professionals when necessary, and outwitted the kids continually. On call 364 days a year ("Christmas is the only day I take off"), even Sunday mornings ("I go to 6:30 mass at the Cathedral") and graduation day ("This is the only day they can get me to wear a shirt and tie"), Charlie was omnipresent and, some thought, everlasting.

In a way Charlie is everlasting, for he will live on in countless hearts and hundreds of stories. The more improbable the stories are the more likely they are to be true. And who does not have a Charlie Beggy story to tell? Does anyone know who got Brothers good seats at the Duquesne Gardens years ago? How did all those odds and ends from Central become integral parts of a certain cabin in the mountains or of a lawn in Greenfield? ("I had permission for everything!") Who turned a hose on a graduate, all decked out in his service uniform, just for yelling "shoemaker?"

What freshman has not been called "babyface" and told to "get down those steps?" What Brother has not woken early on a wintry morning to the sound of a snow shovel scraping across the walk? What teacher was not awarded the "Prize for Dumbness" for leaving windows open and shades crooked? ("What college did you go to?") Which student of Polish extraction was not playfully called "dago" and which Italian was not called "polack"? ("I don't have any favorites!") Many student of offending nationalities learned to smile and say, "Hi, cousin!" and keep on going. What teacher has not had his class disturbed by the roar of a power mower in the good weather? ("When else can I cut the grass?") Whose academic credentials were not questioned for showing too many movies in class? ("I could teach at Central, too, if I knew how to run a movie projector!")

Perhaps forgotten in the humorous moments and drowned out by the irascible temper were the generosity, dedication, an example of a true Christian. Hard-working father of five, loyal husband and doting grandfather, these sides of Charlie's personality may not strike one at first glance. Where did he get all that energy for so many years? How did he keep his sense of humor? Up at five, on the job at six, closing up shop at four but always on call. Popping up in the Brothers' house on Saturday and Sunday mornings for a bite to eat or a report on the state of the parking lot after a dance. ("It must have been North Catholic boys again. Our boys never touch Miller's.")

As for the source of energy and humor, there is undoubtedly a spiritual dimension at the bottom of it all. Christian virtues and a strong, solid faith were put into action, not talked about. In addition, Charlie has great respect for his employers of many years, the Christian Brothers. So loyal and helpful has he been in their apostolate that, in 1973, they petitioned their Superior General, Brother Charles Henry, to grant Charlie the highest honor bestowed on a benefactor, Affiliation. This happy event was celebrated by a mass and dinner at Central on June 2, 1973, at which many of Charlie's family, friends, and associates among the Brothers were present. "Brother Charlie" was highly pleased by the honor but not spoiled by all the attention.

Where is he now? Well, check the watering holes favored by Central grads Downtown, in Oakland, and in Greenfield. You can buy him a beer, but only one. Be careful what you say for he still has that temper and still thinks Central can whip North any day of the year. Will he ever change? We hope not. Occasionally someone shouts from a passing car, "Are you still alive?" Yes, Charlie is alive—and kicking!

seminary once housed here

Central Catholic conducted a seminary department from 1936 to 1940. It was known as the Catholic Institute of Pittsburgh and was affiliated with St. Vincent College in Latrobe, Pennsylvania.

The original plan of the Institute was established in 1932. It was intended that a seminary group would take four years of high school work at Central and two years of college preparation in the affiliated Institute before going to the St. Vincent campus to complete training for the priesthood.

By 1938 the first group of students had completed the six years of preparation and the first seminary class was ready to matriculate at St. Vincent.

It was in its capacity of an extension school (of St. Vincent) that the Catholic Institute of Pittsburgh received its state recognition as a fully accredited educational institution.

Strictly a diocesan school, the Institute was designed for the purpose of educating young men for the diocesan priesthood. Administration of the Institute was in the hands of the Christian Brothers. A pure arts course was given each student, with the exception that typing and book-keeping were added in the sophomore college year, at the suggestion of Bishop Boyle.

Among Central's most distinguished alumni are two bishops, both from the high school class of 1938. They are Pittsburgh Auxiliary Bishop John B. McDowell and Greensburg Auxiliary Bishop Norbert F. Gaughan. They were ordained priests by Bishop Boyle at St. Vincent Archabbey on November 4, 1945.

Seven years after ordination, young Father McDowell was appointed assistant superintendent of schools in 1952. On December 15, 1955, he was appointed Superintendent, a position in which he served unstintingly for fifteen years. It was a happy day for the Diocese of Pittsburgh and for all concerned with Central Catholic when he was ordained a bishop on September 7, 1966.

Prior to his ordination as a bishop on June 25, 1975, Bishop Norbert Gaughan had served for thirty years as a priest in the Pittsburgh and Greensburg dioceses. After serving as an assistant pastor in Uniontown and Greensburg, he was appointed to work in the chancery in 1954. He was appointed assistant chancellor and secretary in 1955 and given the additional assignment as chaplain at Seton Hill College in 1958. He became chancellor of the Greensburg Diocese in 1960, a position he still retains.

Both Bishops hold doctorate degrees; Bishop McDowell from the Catholic University of America and Bishop Gaughan from the University of Pittsburgh.

A third prelate, Bishop Emil J. Mihalik, Eparch of the Byzantine Catholic Diocese of Parma, Ohio, even though he did not attend Central Catholic, was a student at the Catholic Institute, with Bishops McDowell and Gaughan. Upon completing courses at the Institute, he was to go to Rome for further seminary training, but instead entered the Benedictine Seminary at Lisle, Illinois, due to the Second World War.

Central Catholic is proud of these men not because they are alumni, not because they have had distinguished careers, and not even because they are bishops. What we admire is that they have been able to direct their varied pursuits toward that which is whole and good in the fruition of their vocations to build up Christ's Church.

Saint John Baptist de La Salle, Founder of the Brothers of the Christian Schools, has been a powerful force for good in the educational work of the Church ever since, in the Seventeenth Century, he undertook the guidance of a small group of young teachers. An intrepid pioneer, he made a number of significant contributions to the field of education. On fire with zeal to educate the poor, he was not an educational theorist; he was an intensely practical man. The improvements he inaugurated in methods of teaching, classroom management, school administration, popular education, and the use of the vernacular have been praised by educationalists through the years.

To develop adequately the La Sallian vision, we wish we had words like new coins, untarnished by use. Lacking them, we can only say that Saint La Salle's contributions to the field of education and their subsequent development have become an inspiring entry in the world's log-book.

the CHRISTIAN BROTHERS

Late provincial, former student and principal of Central, Brother Jeremy McNamara (left) welcomes former Superior General Brother Charles Henry, (the first American successor to the Brothers' founder St. John Baptist de La Salle). Also shown are Brother James Muffley, FSC, Director of the Brothers' Community from 1970 to 1975 and Brother Benedict Oliver, principal. This visit on September 13, 1972 was the first in history of a Christian Brother Superior General to Central Catholic.

mass of thanksgiving

It was a glorious, happy day when Central Catholic celebrated its 50th anniversary on Sunday, October 17, 1976 at St. Paul Cathedral. At right are views of various contingents of the procession. Below are pictured from left, Bro. Benedict Oliver, FSC, principal; Greensburg Auxiliary Bishop Norbert F. Gaughan, a member of the class of '38 and homilist for the Mass; Bro. Colman Coogan, FSC, provincial of the Christian Brothers and a member of the class of '48; Bishop Vincent M. Leonard; Bro. E. Anthony Wallace, FSC, perhaps the best-known former principal (1946-1952); and Pittsburgh Auxiliary Bishop John B. McDowell, also a member of the class of '38.

Shown below is Bishop Gaughan delivering his homily on Christian Friendship. In recounting the changes which have taken place in society over the past half-century, the Bishop noted that "the joy we found at Central was 'Christian merriment' " and that "we became friends at Central because Christ was first our friend."

Shown above and below are views of the offertory procession. The symbolic gifts included a mitre; brick, wood and steel; a relic of St. LaSalle; a ring and diploma; a priestly stole; wheat; a book of the gospels; a trophy; the eucharistic gifts of bread, water and wine.

BROTHER BENEDICT OLIVER, F.S.C.
B.A., M.A., M.A., M.Ed.
Honors English I
Director of the Brothers' Community

In his five years as Principal, Brother Benedict has shown himself to be an administrator par excellence. He has been very adept in his perceptions of the changing academic and social atmosphere, both locally and nationally, and has met the challenge of maintaining a curriculum that attempts to develop the modern man of conscience, commitment and leadership.

A Christian Brother for twenty-one years, Brother began his teaching career at Central in 1961 as a teacher of religion and English, and for several years served as moderator of the school newspaper, dramatics, and the Mothers' Guild. To all of his responsibilities Brother has brought a spirit of dedication, thoroughness and good taste.

Among Brother Benedict's major accomplishments have been his untiring efforts toward the erection of the much-needed physical education building.

It has been much to the advantage of Central Catholic to have had so capable an administrator and so personable a friend.

An annual, happy task—the awarding of diplomas to another class of graduates.

In addition to his many duties as chief administrator, Brother found time to teach the Honors English I class each day.

VICE principals

BROTHER DAVID C. MENEGAY, F.S.C., B.A., M.A., M.S.Ed.
Vice-Principal for Academic Affairs . . . Algebra II . . . Moderator of the Mothers' Guild.

Brother David, now completing his seventh year at Central, has held the office of Vice Principal for Academic Affairs for the last six years. His position is a challenging one as he encounters an ever fluctuating academic curricula which must be designed to meet the needs of today's Central student.

Being an individual who relishes a challenge, Brother David involves himself as a teacher of Algebra II to a class of juniors and as moderator of the Mothers' Guild, in addition to his duties involving the general daily operation of the school and arranging student scheduling and grade reports.

Brother David's jovial manner and friendship have long endeared him in the minds and hearts of all Central students.

MR. JOHN M. MAURER, B.A., M.A., M.Ed.
Vice-Principal for Student Affairs . . . Advanced Placement English; History of Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania.

Mr. Maurer has completed fourteen years at Central and his eighth as Vice Principal for Student Affairs.

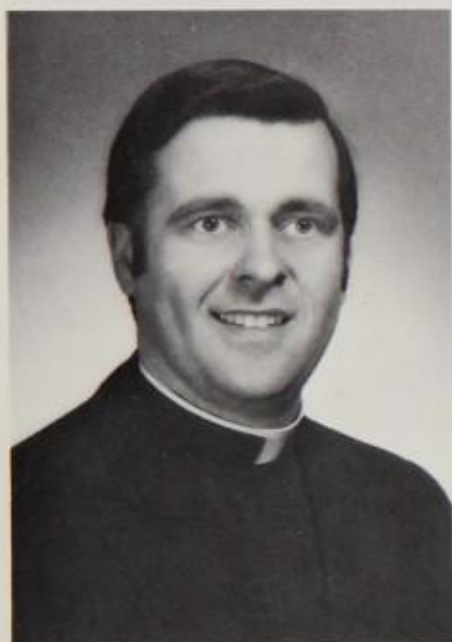

In his capacity as an administrator, Mr. Maurer integrates a multiplicity of roles which as a rule are quite demanding. His specific administrative duties include the overseeing and coordinating of all extra-curricular activities and athletics, and all matters pertaining to student attendance. In addition, Mr. Maurer also directs the summer school.

Mr. Maurer's position doesn't take him out of the classroom entirely. A learned and talented teacher of English, he will soon be receiving the doctoral degree from Carnegie—Mellon University. Attesting to Mr. Maurer's talent as a teacher, we quote one of his former students, "He was the best teacher of English who I ever had."

underclasses

Forming the bulk of Central's population, the freshmen, sophomores, and juniors are constantly in a pattern of growth and development. As underclassmen, they play a part in all of Central's activities and functions, and these contribute to their maturity. The rewards for their efforts are garnered when, as seniors, the well-deserved spotlight of recognition falls upon them.

ROBERT papale

JANUARY 11, 1961-AUGUST 10, 1976

A graduate of Saint Bede Grade School and member of Homeroom 1D, the suddenness of Bob Papale's death shocked and crushed us. He died in a drowning accident on an outing with friends. Perhaps our feelings were so severe because he was so wrapped up in Central and his friends. Bob was an honor student and so excelled in sports that even older buddies from his Point Breeze neighborhood who competed with him in pick-up games marveled at his athletic prowess.

Bob was respected and loved by teachers, coaches, teammates and all who knew him.

At the Mass for Christian Burial offered for Bob, many of us were moved by these words of the Lord appropriately chosen from the Book of Wisdom: "The virtuous man, though he die before his time, will find rest. Length of days is not what makes an age honorable, nor number of years the true measure of life." What, then, does make age, even age fifteen, worthy of honor? Solid virtues do; gentleness, goodness, unselfishness, modesty, tolerance, humility, honesty—all these help us take measure of an honorable life. These virtues describe our classmate; he was the embodiment of them. Never, among his closest buddies from "The Breeze" was there recalled an unkind word against "Bird." This is no small compliment.

Saint Paul reminds us that death is a mystery. Like life and its purpose, man, his nature, and his relationship to God—death, too, puzzles most men.

However, we do have some understanding of this mystery. He sent his Son, Jesus, to tell us that death is not the end; that even though we die, we shall live forever. But, because we are human and, therefore, weak, we are still mystified by death when it strikes one close to us and we want to know why.

Why Bob? Why this unselfish, good and decent young classmate of ours who was so full of life and had so much to give?

Death is a mystery, and because it is, our faith tells us that God sometimes works greater wonders through death, which we all fear, than through life which we all prize very much.

We who knew and loved "Bird" thank God for the goodness he has shown us by placing him among us in our lives as an example of how we might live and love.

May God give us the grace to understand His wisdom and have mercy on the soul of Bob Papale who believed Him to be his Redeemer.

activities

Besides providing an academic atmosphere that is conducive to learning, a school should have certain programs to help its students expand in other areas. Central is fortunate to have such a range of activities. At Central a student can choose from a score of extra-curricular activities which can help him to discover his own individuality while learning the uniqueness and the potentials of his peers.

'TOWERS'

BELOW: Busily engaged in the planning stage of the anniversary edition are associate editors Len Schuster, Tom Conturo, Larry Bucci, and Kevin Keyho with editor-in-chief Tom Kimicata (seated).

The staff of 1977 Fiftieth Anniversary edition of the TOWERS takes pride in this attempt to preserve the best of Central's first fifty years. Yearbooks have a tendency to be redundant in their photographs, historically obvious in their copy, and sophomoric in their humor. We have attempted to inculcate the best available creativity.

The 1977 Fiftieth Anniversary edition did not just happen. It was in the minds of some before the recent two tomes were begun. The long hours of working after school, the many Saturdays spent in the yearbook office, the frantic rushes to meet deadlines has resulted in pride—the pride of knowing that it was our efforts that went into publishing this book. It is different. It is about you and for you.

FORENSICS

Since the era of Demosthenes and the initial steps toward the systemization of organized rhetoric, man has constantly searched out new and more effective manners of oral communication. The area of extemporaneous speech required him to be the spokesman of quick and logical response, without previous study or premeditation. Oratory, the art of publicly speaking effectively but eloquently, demanded of him a steady voice with unwavering vis à vis contact. In the fields of prose and poetry, he trained his voice to inflect properly, so that which was being spoken could be properly determined and analyzed. With declarative recitation he committed to memory the immortal words of famous speeches and attempted to deliver them in the tone and mood of the original presentation.

Assistant Director Mr. John Kennedy is rocked by Director Bro. Rene Sterner after an afternoon of grueling practice.

Foremost among the qualities for which the National Honor Society stands is that of service. Pictured here are seniors Phil Scolieri and Regis Schratz with junior Ivan Snyder in a tutoring situation.

Clockwise from upper left: Mike Lyczko and Dave Schuetz review the program prior to the ceremony; the academic procession enters the auditorium; Regis Powers, Andy Petruscak and Tom Pepke stand to take the N.H.S. Pledge; the attention of a few members is caught by the TOWERS photographer.

honors convocation

An ideal educational experience provides the necessary foundation for life. The potential effect of such a learning process is a probing of classroom presentations, sifting from the power of the word the energy which will transform knowledge into practical dynamism. Annually each June, the Honors Convocation honors those Central men who, intrigued by questions at issue, have harnessed knowledge and have excelled academically and encourages them to continue to uphold the hegemonic level of academic labor.

The annual convocation first honors underclassmen for outstanding achievement on national tests and for maintaining Central Catholic's Honor Roll standards of gentlemanly conduct and a cumulative record of 90% or better. Secondly, the induction of members of the junior class into the LaSalle Chapter of the National Honor Society honors those who, besides having maintained the prescribed general average, have also contributed to the school as members or often officers of extracurricular activities. The Society aspires to implant in the individual an inspiration to develop specific talents within.

The Hall of Fame installation is the third feature of the Honors Convocation. Annually, Central honors an alumnus with this honor and honorary induction into the National Honor Society. At the June 10, 1976 ceremonies, Mr. William F. Pleva, a member of the Class of 1946, was noted for his achievements as a successful architect and for exemplifying the qualities of character, scholarship, leadership and service. In addition, Mr. Pleva was thanked for his generous efforts as the architect of Central's new physical education building.

athletics

Athletes are a vital part of the Central atmosphere, for sports take over where academics leave off. Besides building strength and stamina, sports at Central teach a young man to have confidence in himself, and to develop a warm comradeship with his fellow teammates. It can be justly said that Central sports play an important part in forming the whole man.

GRADUATES

For the seniors, 1977 is a beginning and an end. Besides being the culmination of their high school career, the year 1977 marks the end of a way of life for them. As the members of the senior class move on, they leave Central behind them, but it is the hope of all associated with the school that the class of '77 will depart with a true sense of the Central spirit.

AND SEVEN YEARS AGO OUR FATHERS BROUGHT FORTH C
 ENGAGED IN A GREAT CIVIL WAR, TESTING WHETHER THAT NATION OR ANY NATION SO CONCEIVED AND SO DEDICATED, CAN LONG ENDURE. WE ARE MET ON A VE COME TO DEDICATE A PORTION OF THAT FIELD AS A FINAL RESTING PLACE FOR THOSE WHO HERE GAVE THEIR LIVES THAT THAT NATION MIGHT LIVE. IT I
 E SHOULD DO THIS. BUT, IN A LARGER SENSE WE CANNOT DEDICATE-WE CANNOT CONSECRATE-WE CANNOT HALLOW-THIS GROUND. THE BRAVE MEN, LIVING AND DI
 ATED IT, FAR ABOVE OUR POOR POWER TO ADD OR DETRACT. THE WORLD WILL LITTLE NOTE, NOR LONG REMEMBER, WHAT WE SAY HERE, BUT IT CAN NEVER FORGE
 NG, RATHER, TO BE DEDICATED HERE TO THE UNFINISHED WORK WHICH THEY WHO FOUGHT HERE HAVE THUS FAR SO NOBLY ADVANCED. IT IS RATHER FOR US TO BE
 NING BEFORE US-THAT FROM THESE HONORED DEAD WE TAKE INCREASED DEVOTION TO THAT CAUSE FOR WHICH THEY GAVE THE LAST FULL MEASURE OF DE
 VE THAT THESE DEAD SHALL NOT HAVE DIED IN VAIN-THAT THIS NATION, UNDER GOD, SHALL HAVE A NEW BIRTH OF FREEDOM-AND THAT GOVERNME
 R THE PEOPLE, SHALL NOT PERISH FROM THE EARTH.

THE 1977 FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY edition of the TOWERS has attempted to unite the best of what has been with the best of what is to come.

Central's fifty years are comprised of labor beyond mere human energy, dedication beyond understanding, pride beyond measure, and faith beyond mere optimism.

We rejoice "that there came to be a Central Catholic, that during these fifty years it graduated thousands of Catholic men, that it continues its Christian work, that the Christian Brothers have given to America, to the Church and to the city of Pittsburgh this magnificent harvest of dedicated men. We rejoice that these Central alumni continue to work in their individual paths, as their ancestors did before them, for God's glory, man's peace, and the fellowship of mankind.

"We became friends at Central because Christ was first our friend. Because He is our friend, we were friends. Together we have borne fruit that will last—our families, our communities, our associations, our works. . . . We are Christ's. If He is for us, who is against us? Then sing of God who has done great things. Live by that love which is no pretense. Let us continue to live as brothers—yes, and sisters—should. We have a profound respect for each other. We have hope. We are Christian merriment, for we are men of Central Catholic—Christian men, friends of God, friends of God's world, friends of His Church, and yes (dare we say it?) friends with ourselves."
